We Know No Better Way of Saying "Thank You" than By Giving You Our Merchandise at Lowered Prices

THAT'S the why of this Annive sary Sale. It marks our tenth birth tay. We have already received our gift from the public in a splendidly increased year's business. We return the courtesy as well as we can by giving the public materially decreased

It's the tes way we know of saying "Thank you." Naturally it has its advantages, too-we certainly to a tremendous business through the owered prices, but that coesn't in any way ciminish the gain of the people who get the targains.

Before The Big Store came to New-York and stirred things up in retail circles, there used to be a theory that "bargains were the acci ents of business." Such a thing as putting special prices on practically an entire storeful of new merchandise just to celebrate an occasion was considered an act verging on that thin edge that separates indiscretion from insanity.

That's one of the old-fashioned theories that The Big Store has exploded. Of course we didn't invent the "special saie," but we die show how it could be used. It is common enough now, and the public has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars in the special prices offe ed. We have never had such a sale as that which is in progress now. It is the more important among the many "sales" which this town knows, because it comes at a time when the fresh, new Fall goods are at their freshest and fullest. But "their beauty cannot save them" from the Anniversary Sale reductions.

Ask yourselves why these things are so—and come and find out. A trial of the shoe will explain it all.
